

Flowcrete Takes Queen's Award for Enterprise

A flooring manufacturer that has grown from its roots in South Cheshire to include offices across 29 countries has been honoured with the coveted accolade for UK business performance, The Queen's Award for Enterprise.

Flowcrete UK Ltd, a world leader in specialist industrial and commercial flooring, has secured the award in the International Trade category for its innovative approach, operational excellence, relationship building, brand development - and increasing exports by 150 per cent in the last three years.

Since Flowcrete's launch in 1982, the Group – of which Flowcrete UK is the founding company - has grown to include 23 offices and eight manufacturing centres of excellence across the globe - employing more than 40 different nationalities.

Recent innovative products from Flowcrete include bug-controlling floors for the health, food and pharmaceutical industries - which kill MRSA, E-coli and salmonella – as well as self-levelling systems that allow applications to take place 10 times faster than conventional methods – whilst taking the strain off the backs and knees of flooring installers.

“Winning this award is absolutely brilliant news for us. As a company, we have always put a great emphasis on developing innovative new products and investing in our people, and that has been the reason for our success across the world.”

(Mark Greaves, Managing Director Flowcrete Group Ltd.)